Full Itinerary

When people think of Bangkok, often it conjures up images of traffic jams that last from sunrise to sunset and the thought of riding a bike gives people nightmares. We're here to show you that pedal power is the way forward in Bangkok! This Bangkok bike tour gives you an interesting insight into an area of Bangkok that few people know about, the very heart and soul of Bangkok - Bangkok Noi.

You'll start your Bangkok tour near Khao San Road in Banglamphu, and after a quick bike fitting and briefing, you'll head out ready and raring to go. You'll begin by winding your way through the back streets of suburban Bangkok and small laneways along the riverside, and cross the famous Rama VIII bridge then ride through a local community. No busy highways for you, this is the real Bangkok and you'll be journeying right through the heart of it!

You'll follow the path along the network of small canals connected to Bangkok Noi Canal, which will lead you to the spectacular Wat Arun, the Temple of Dawn. The relaxing bike ride here won't make you short of breath, but this unbelievable emblem of Bangkok is definitely set to take your breath away. This temple is known for its intricate architectural design and historical significance, and you'll take a moment at this point to drink in the view and learn about Wat Arun and the surrounding neighbourhood from your local guide.

From Wat Arun, you'll head back across the river to Pranakorn, over the beautiful Memorial Bridge. Here, you'll pay a visit to another gorgeous temple named Wat Suthat, one of Bangkok's hidden gems. Stepping inside is a peaceful haven from the bustling city outside.

In front of Wat Suthat stands one of the old city's most prominent landmarks, the Giant Swing. At more than 20 metres tall this swing was used as part of a thanksgiving ceremony in the past and represents the movement of the God Shiva, and each part of the swing represents different parts of the Earth

From here, you'll head back to where the journey began to finish your Bangkok bike adventure. From here, you can continue to explore on your own, or your local guide will be able to give you directions back to your accommodation.

This day tour is a gentle 20km journey through the backstreets and canals of Bangkok, and is suitable for anyone who can ride a bike. No pro skills or wheelie champion medals necessary! We'll provide you with bikes and helmets, as well as all that local know-how that our Bangkok team are full of.

When you're deliberating what to do in Bangkok but don't know where to start, make sure you don't miss out on this unique and thrilling way to see the city. The decision is as easy as riding a bike!
