Full Itinerary

Join us for a divine tasting tour as we introduce you to both the popular and lesser-known gastronomic treasures of Budapest. This Budapest food tour starts at the Central Market Hall, a city landmark that's over one hundred years old. There, we'll taste some slices of salami and sausages and other special local treats, get acquainted with the history of the building and hear a brief introduction on what is eaten and how it's eaten in Hungary.

Next up, we'll walk through some of the hidden streets of downtown where we'll taste a sweet treat – choose a delectable chocolate bonbon from an award-winning chocolate factory that's tucked away in Central Pest and known for its pure chocolate, London Chocolate Award, and fair trade production.

As we continue to tour Budapest, we'll head to an alternative, retro café for a spritzer and an education in Hungarian drinks. Our Budapest food tour then takes us through the Jewish district, where we can admire the largest and most beautiful synagogue in Europe, and enjoy a tasting at not one, but three local restaurants. One of which will be a small local eatery that boasts a healthy selection of Hungarian fresh-water fish. We'll follow this with a tasting of authentic Jewish fare at one of our favourite local spots, learning about kosher food and traditions as we eat. We're keeping the other stop a secret.

From there, we'll cross the World Heritage-listed Andrássy Avenue and make our way to Hungarian food heaven at one of our favourite little restaurants to try one or two local dishes. What we eat will depend on the seasons, but expect such delights as stew or chicken with paprika and some tasty local dessert, too. Your Budapest food tour ends here, happily full of some of the best Budapest food in town. Before you go, don't forget to ask your guide for more tips on what else to see, do and eat during your stay.
