Full Itinerary

Your Denver tour will show you the transformation of Denver's lower downtown warehouse district (LoDo) from after-thought to "THE Spot" for locals, as we walk through what was skid row, past Coors Field baseball park and into River North, arguably the fastest up-and-coming neighborhood in Denver.

Along the way, we'll stop for an all-locally sourced lunch. The chef here forges personal relationships with each farm he works with; his team visits the farms and works in the fields with the farmers to understand exactly what goes into the food they proudly serve.

Next, you've got a very important decision to make: which Colorado beer will take its claim as your favorite? Don't worry, we'll visit a local watering hole where you'll have plenty of time and can sample from a self-serve tap that features 15 local beers, a cider, and wine.

Then it's off to explore the creativity of the River North Arts District, where the art refuses to be confined behind closed doors. Each year, artists are given free range to turn the walls of local buildings into their canvas and the results are stunning. You'll have plenty of time to take pictures and decide which artists to follow on Instagram as we make our way through the living canvas that is the River North Art District.

We'll close out our Denver tour with a short ride back to where we started, on the recently opened light rail line that runs the 25 miles from downtown to Denver International Airport.
