Local Impact: How you will help the local community by joining this tour:

- The H St. neighborhood has been home to immigrant communities for decades. All of the stops you visit are locally-owned establishments off the typical tourist tract.

- This is a historically minority-focused neighborhood that is rapidly gentrifying and your guide will try to take you to as many minority-owned establishments as possible in order to preserve the character and history of the area.

Inclusions: Local, English-speaking guide, food and drink samples. Food and drink options may vary on each tour, depending on what is in season and what is available.

Exclusions: Additional food and drinks, souvenirs and personal shopping, tips/gratuities for your guide.

You’ve seen the major sites in Washington DC — the Capitol Building, the Smithsonian Museums and the thought-provoking memorials — but did you ever wonder about the people who built this great city? Join us on a foodie tour of H Street, the neighborhood that housed the builders and artisans who built the city and made it come to life.

After introducing ourselves at the meeting point, we kick off the tour with a delicious snack from a local grocery store. Then we head to a cafe with freshly roasted, in-house coffee, where we may even meet the unofficial “Mayor of H St!”

We continue to make a loop around the H Street Corridor, visiting restaurants, markets, churches, and historic sites. Our foodie stops vary depending on what is available that day but we can promise a culinary rollercoaster ride through many of DC’s most authentic and delicious neighborhood spots.

Along the way, you’ll hear some amazing stories about the people who used to live and work in this district, learn how food has played a big part in bringing the community together and taste for yourself why DC’s food scene is enjoying a much-deserved resurgence.

After we have filled you up with some of the best food in the city, don’t forget to ask your local guide for more hints and tips on how to get the most from your stay in Washington DC.
